EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Noah Sadiki has become one of the most versatile and reliable talents to emerge from the Belgian Pro League, and is now ready for the Premier League spotlight following his €15.0m move to Sunderland from Union Saint-Gilloise. A DR Congo international, he arrives with over 100 professional career appearances, including a key role in Union SG's first Belgian league title in 90 years.

TECHNICAL ANALYSIS

He is a tireless ball-winner with solid tactical discipline, and his two-footed proficiency gives him valuable flexibility in distributing play. His involvement in 34 league matches during the 2024–25 season reflects consistency and reliability in a physically demanding role.

TACTICAL ANALYSIS

His comfort playing as a defensive midfielder, right-back, and center-back gives him significant tactical flexibility, allowing his coaching staff to deploy him in different roles depending on the needs of each match. This versatility, combined with his positional intelligence, makes him a structurally valuable player beyond his natural position.

PHYSICAL AND MENTAL ASPECTS

He stands out for his high stamina and strong defensive work ethic. Despite some off-the-field noise during his move from Anderlecht to Union SG, he quickly established himself as a fundamental pillar of the team, reflecting solid mental maturity. He was praised for his mentality and energy, qualities that led him to choose Sunderland's project over interest from other clubs such as Lyon.
