

SCOUTING REPORT

Prepared by Tobias Galante — Football Scout | Technical Report

PLAYER DATA

Name: Thierno Barry
Age: 22 years old (October 21, 2002)
Nationality: France
Position: Centre-Forward
Preferred foot: Both (able to finish with either foot)
Height: 1.95 m
Current club: Everton
Report date: 23/07/2025

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Thierno Barry is not simply a target man in the box; he projects as a complete forward aligned with the demands of modern football. Standing at an imposing 1.95 m, his presence in the air is a constant threat. What really sets him apart, however, is his footwork, his ability to link up play, and his sharp goal-scoring instinct inside the box.

TECHNICAL ANALYSIS

His ability to finish with either foot significantly broadens his attacking repertoire, allowing him to resolve goal-scoring situations from different angles without relying on a dominant side. This technical skill, somewhat unexpected in a forward of his physical stature, is one of his most underrated traits.

TACTICAL ANALYSIS

Barry fits perfectly into the forward profile that contemporary football values: tall, powerful, and equipped with a wide range of skills. His ability to link up play, beyond simply finishing chances, allows him to actively participate in his team's offensive build-up.

PHYSICAL AND MENTAL ASPECTS

His height combined with exceptional mobility forms an uncommon pairing: he is not merely a target man by size, but retains the mobility to generate constant danger both in the air and in behind the defensive line.

KEY DATA POINTS

- Height: 1.95 m.
- First-team forward at Everton, Premier League.

STRENGTHS AND WEAKNESSES

Strengths

- Height and exceptional mobility.
- Ability to finish with either foot.
- Underrated technical ability.

Areas for Improvement / Limitations

- Currently working to refine certain aspects of his game (no specific detail provided).

PROJECTION AND CONCLUSION

While he is still in a phase of refining certain aspects of his game, his potential is undeniable. His combination of physical presence, technical skill with both feet, and link-up play positions him as a modern forward with clear room for growth within Everton's project.
